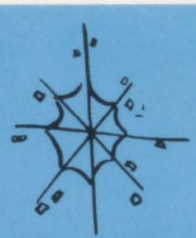
MILLER-LANIER

MILLER SENIOR
LANIER SENIOR
MACON, GEORGIA



The leisurely days of summer are a half-remembered dream ... once again we return to the frenetic pace of autumn ... ginkgo trees make a golden carpet ... and the air is fresh and tingling ...

As nature prepares for her winter's sleep, Miller and Lanier come alive with the urgency of youth, exhilarated with life ... with the anxiety of football games, the happiness of Homecoming, Sponsors' Day, bonfires, pep rallies, superlatives ... the doubt and uncertainty of the first report card, of "being accepted," of grasping high school's new challenge ...

All of these are autumn at Miller and Lanier ... it is a time when 2,000 youth embark upon a journey, amid the heritage of two schools, aged in years, nevertheless perpetually young because of youth in them ... a journey which leaves childhood behind and maturity just around the corner ... with each traveler rarely looking back ... an Odyssey called education.

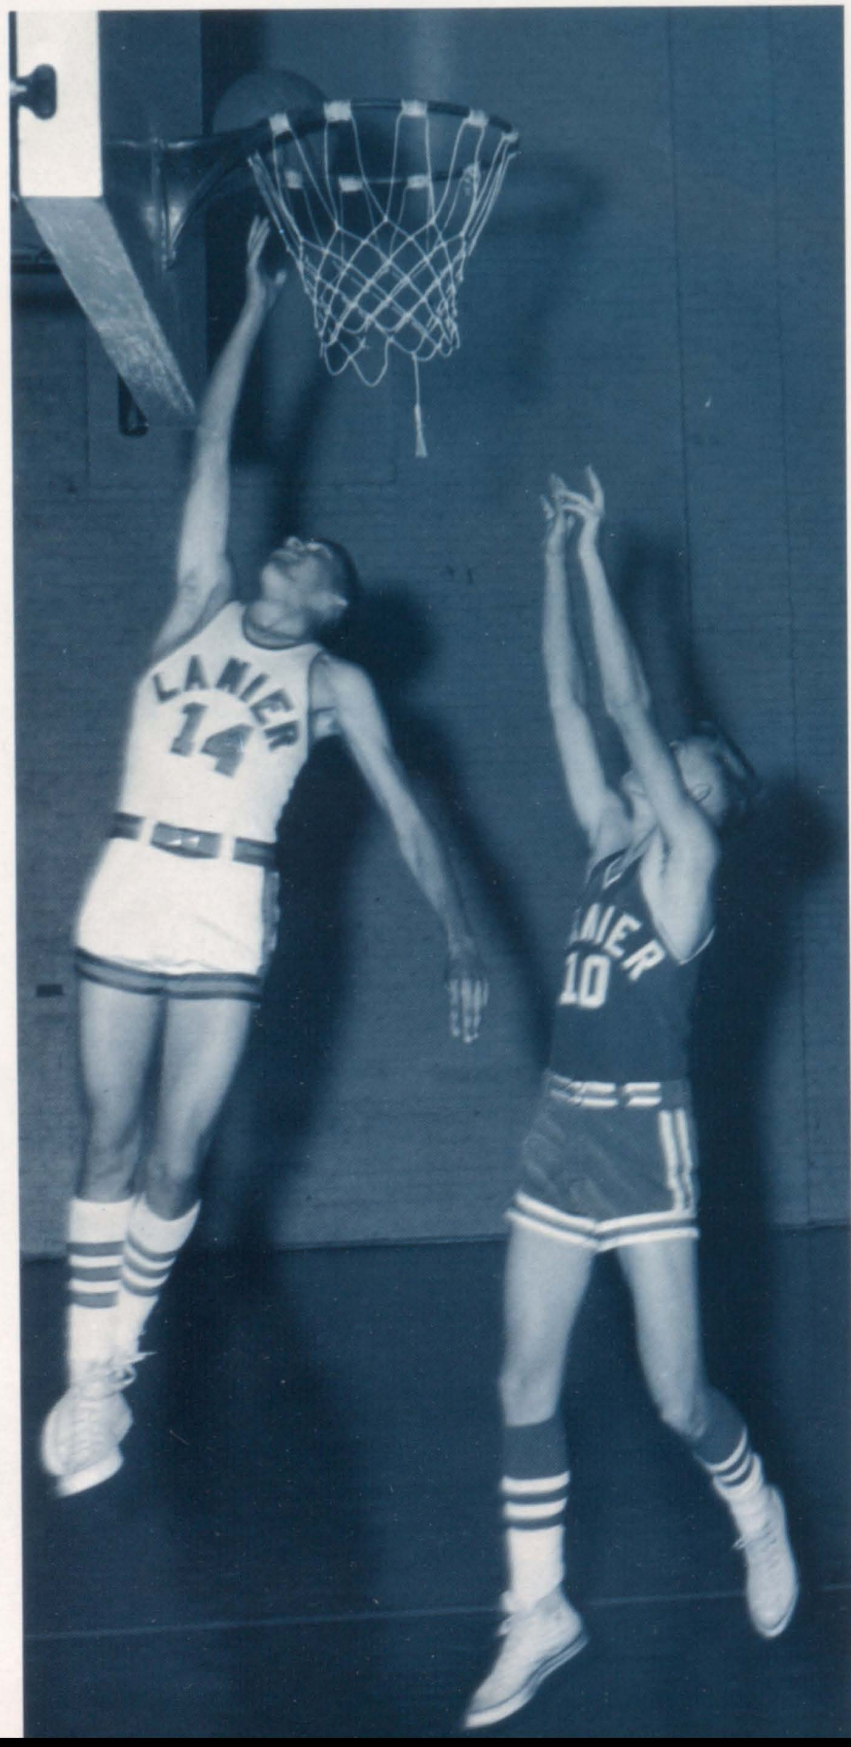
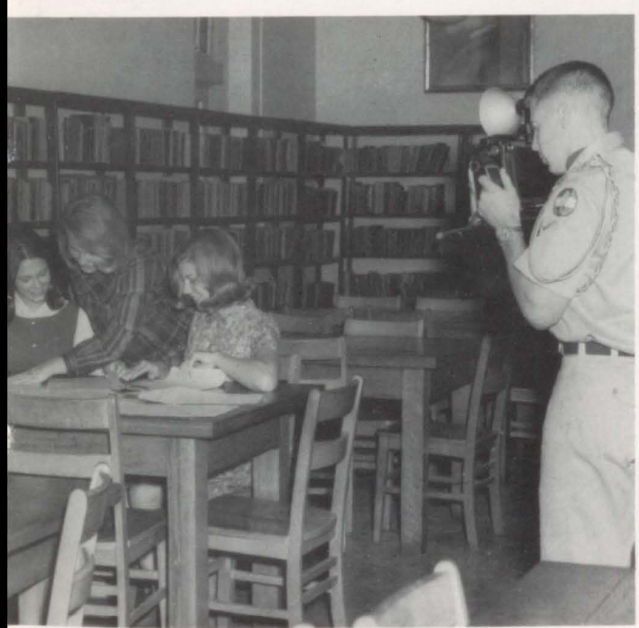
Winter is

Repose and Activity

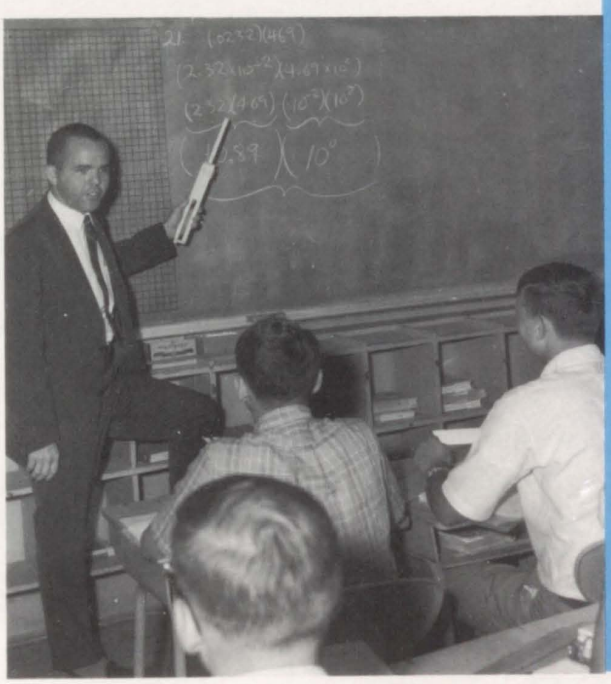




As fall fades into the gray somberness of winter, the tranquil world takes its repose . . . the days seem shorter and assignments longer . . .

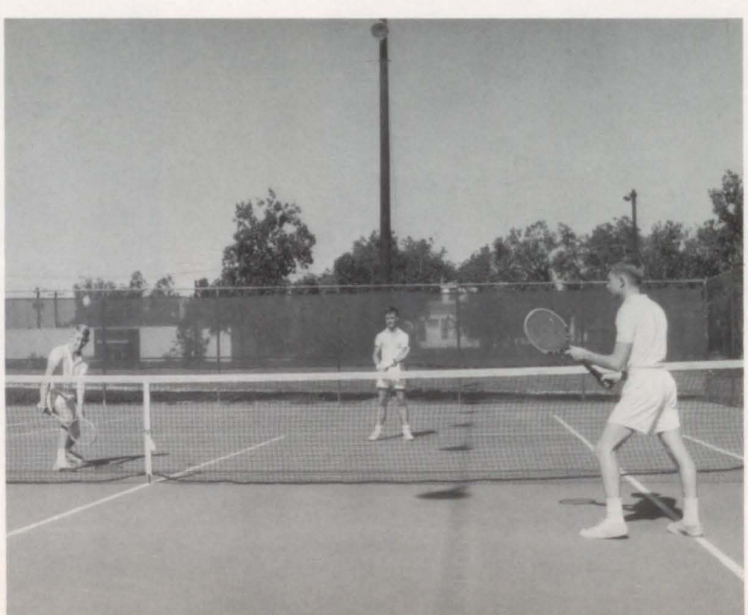
Winter is many things to many people . . . walking in the nippy air, lost in thought . . . a light, magic layer of snow . . . a cold hand on a colder rifle . . . college board exams . . . the wild frenzy of basketball games . . . defeating Willingham . . . the joy and warmth of Christmas . . . the thrill of wearing new clothes for the first time . . . the gala atmosphere and hilarity of New Year's Eve . . .

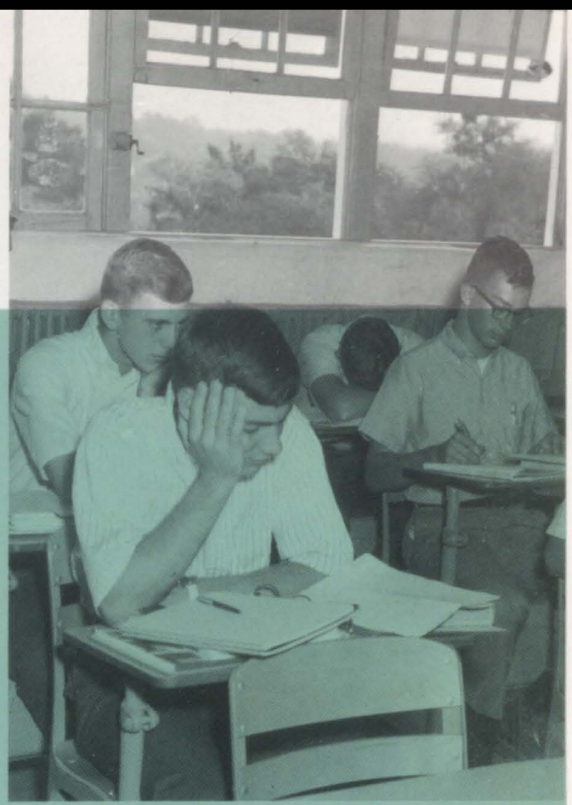
Winter is a time when nature slows its pace and youth accelerates its quest for identity in a society which places tremendous pressure on the young . . . when the earnestness of youth is balanced against the wisdom of the age.

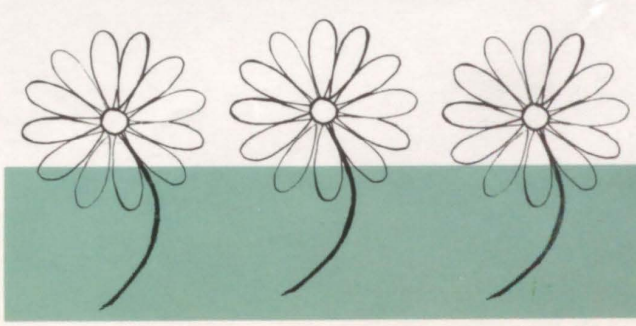


Spring is

End and Beginning







The incessant activity and vitality of the world grips Miller and Lanier in the spring . . . as nature zestfully begins its year, the year of school ends on an equally ringing note . . .

Spring signals the advent of . . . Competitive Night . . . Sports Day . . . baseball games . . . Recognition Day . . . the Military Ball . . . choosing cheerleaders . . . meeting deadlines . . . Graduation . . . and for some, the wonder of love . . .

This is spring, the grand finale of a year that has passed too rapidly to remember, and yet, too slowly to forget . . . a year which will melt irretrievably into the past . . . and when Miller and Lanier have changed . . . and we, older in years, in a moment of sentimental evaluation reminisce about youth . . . perhaps we too shall say, "Ah, this younger generation" . . . because Miller and Lanier will have left upon us the indelible imprint of success and failures, heartaches and happiness . . . which will remain with us forever more.

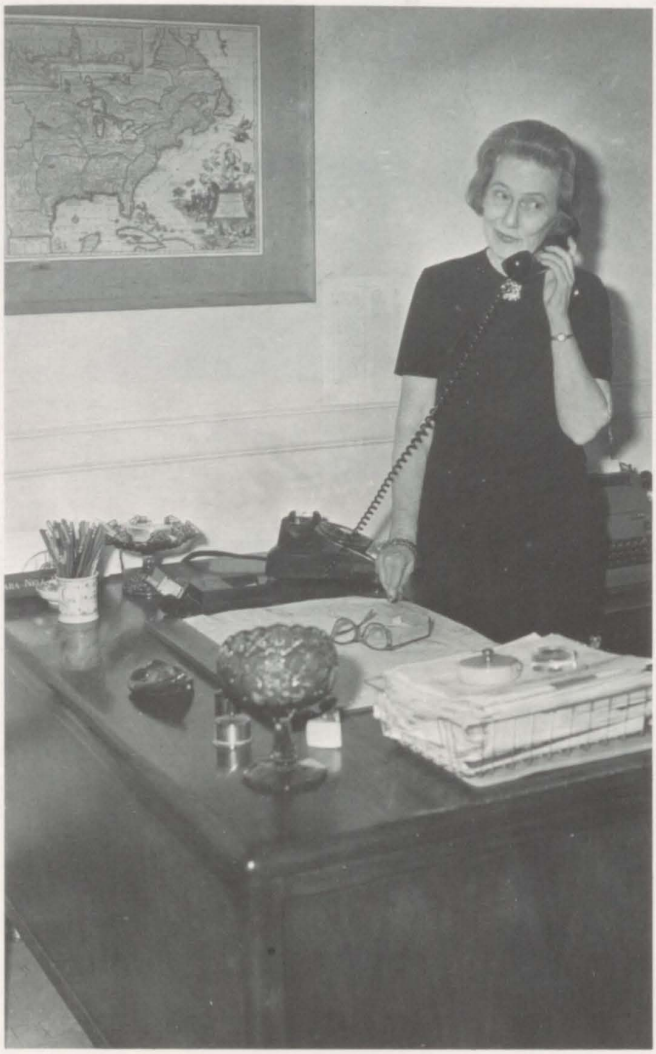
BOARD OF EDUCATION



The Miller Annual staff wishes to recognize our principal, Miss Clara Nell Hargrove, for the quality of the achievements which have marked her work at Miller Senior High. She constantly strives to improve; the results are obvious. Every member of the student body is aware of our school's reputation for academic excellence and high standards. Miss Hargrove has organized the school so well that we seldom realize how much administrative work is involved in the daily functioning of a school of this size.

Finally, we would note the support and cooperation which she gives us in our projects and extra-curricular activities. We proudly salute for her superior leadership, Miss Clara Nell Hargrove.

Only one man may claim the unique distinction of being the first Lanier principal to have graduated from Lanier—this man is Elton Wall.

For a great portion of his life, Elton Wall was associated with Lanier in the capacity of student, teacher, and coach. Through his past service and his present position as principal, Mr. Wall has always exemplified those exacting qualities which Lanier continually strives to instill into its students.

In his short tenure at Lanier, he has revolutionized the functions of an old institution. Better teacher working conditions, more intense and more numerous courses, and general administration efficiency have marked Lanier under Mr. Wall.

To head the operations of a school of one thousand boys, a remarkable man is the order of the day, and our principal is this man. The Lanier Annual staff proudly salutes Elton L. Wall.

LANIER FACULTY— BEST IN YEARS

The vigor and spirit of a crop of new, youthful teachers, combined with the unflagging steadiness and wisdom of the more seasoned, gave Lanier its most outstanding faculty in many years.

A unique breed of teacher is required to instruct teenage boys—a teacher with deep dedication, and exemplary moral character, patience, and a sense of humor. While commanding the respect of boys, the faculty has also gained their admiration.

No amount of eloquence could express our gratitude to and love for the faculty. The teachers and administrators of Lanier have abided by the simple but exacting claim, "We Lead."

Faculty

The faculty at Miller is an inspiration to all the student body, if not the heart of Miller quite definitely an inseparable part of it. Each teacher gives her pupils a chance to involve themselves in an experience which may never come again, the learning experience. These adults have a grave responsibility—one of providing students with a foundation for general culture, of broadening their viewpoints, and of developing sound thinking. It is with respect and awe that we at Miller realize how well this responsibility is met.

Vastly improved and ruggedly competitive are fitting attributes to the 1965 Poet football team. Mentored by a revised coaching staff, the Poets blocked and tackled a 4—4—2 record out of tough region 1-AAA.

The solid Lanier defense earned the healthy respect of each opponent and was widely heralded during the season. Presenting a promising future, the 1965 Poets offer a bumper crop of upcoming lettermen.

The improvement of the 1965 Poet football team can be credited in large part to the Lanier coaching staff. Coaches McCullough, Steiner, Thompson, Breedlove, and Abare proved their salt in their first year, while Coaches Nolan and Thornton added the needed savvy and experience to complete the staff.

A good coach not only directs his team in the methods of play, but also provides it with inspiration and incentive to win. Lanier's football coaches have indeed accomplished both.

"UPON THE FIELD OF FRIENDLY

The military intramural program, in its efforts to encourage physical fitness and competitive spirit, achieved a new height of success during 1965-66. Since competition among companies for honor points in other phases of the military was quite keen, the additional points offered by basketball, track, softball, football, and volleyball championships were alluring and sparked an unprecedented rivalry. Sergeant Eugene Brickhouse directed the intramural program.

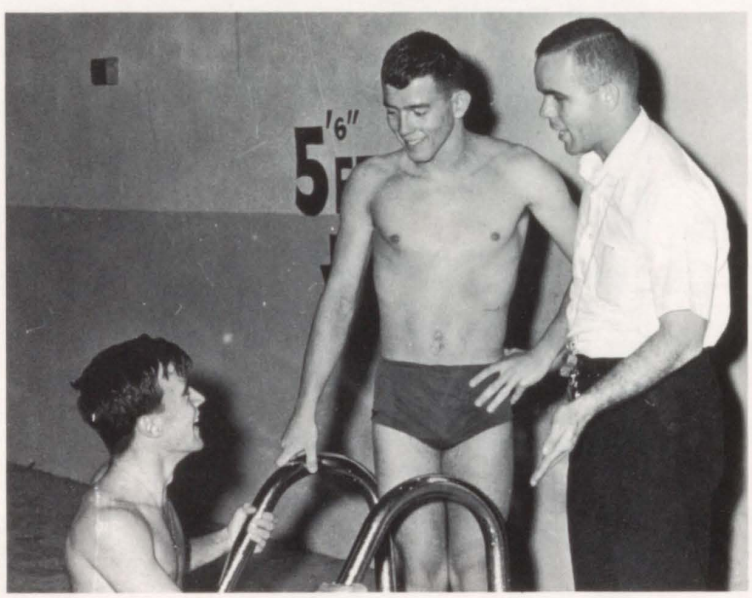
The swimmer wears no shoulder pads and carries no tools of his trade. He uses only himself, and his only armor is his own determination. A desire to achieve the impossible permeates the sport—the swimmer's heart is set on going each race faster, and the diver's soul is dedicated to the vain but wholesome pursuit of perfection.



Co-Capt. Harry Davis and Capt. Dick Joyner discuss meet strategy with Coach Tom Close.

ORGANIZATIONS

An educational institution is not complete without a comprehensive extra-curricular program. The organizations of Miller and Lanier offer a variety of activities, each with its special challenges.

Fifty clubs and publications of the schools cover almost the entire spectrum of student interests. Foreign language clubs, honorary organizations, service clubs, public address and debate societies, a wide range of scholastic publications, and subject clubs enriched the academic life at Miller and Lanier.

The extra-curriculars and academics at both schools are, in reality, one integrated function—each augments the other.

One of the important Student Council projects was promoting good citizenship.

The Student Council, with a revised organization, sought new methods to serve Lanier. Under the direction of President Van Hale and advised by Mrs. Isabelle Kinnett and Mr. T. M. Close, the council wrestled with school problems and, by the actions of its members, established a high standard of conduct for students.

The council this year initiated the safety program and council sponsorship of the bus trips to athletic events, and conducted the 1965 Homecoming festivities, in addition to adopting a new constitution. A precedent for following student councils at Lanier has been set by the 1965-66 group.

The climax of Student Council sponsored Homecoming festivities was the crowning of the queen.

Strong Leadership Yields Good Year for Student Council

Welcoming newcomers, operating Lost and Found, compiling the Address Books, operating the Paperback bookstore—these are but a few of the activities that Student Council must coordinate during each school year. A fundamental job of Student Council is to keep the members of the student body informed on school events.

Through such projects as providing Christmas gifts for deprived children, Student Council proves its value not only to Miller students, but to the community as well.

Leadership, Character Grow from Beta

Beta is a National Club organized to honor those students designated by high school authorities as worthy of special recognition. These girls are chosen for their outstanding character, their creditable achievement, and their leadership abilities.

At Miller the qualities for membership are determined through teachers' evaluations, grades from the year before, and from club offices held.

Beta not only leads the school but also is a service to it. The members have provided a tutoring service for anyone who needs help. They guide at many school functions. To provide for their services, Beta sells mints and pencils during the year. It is a special honor to be a member of the Miller Beta Club.

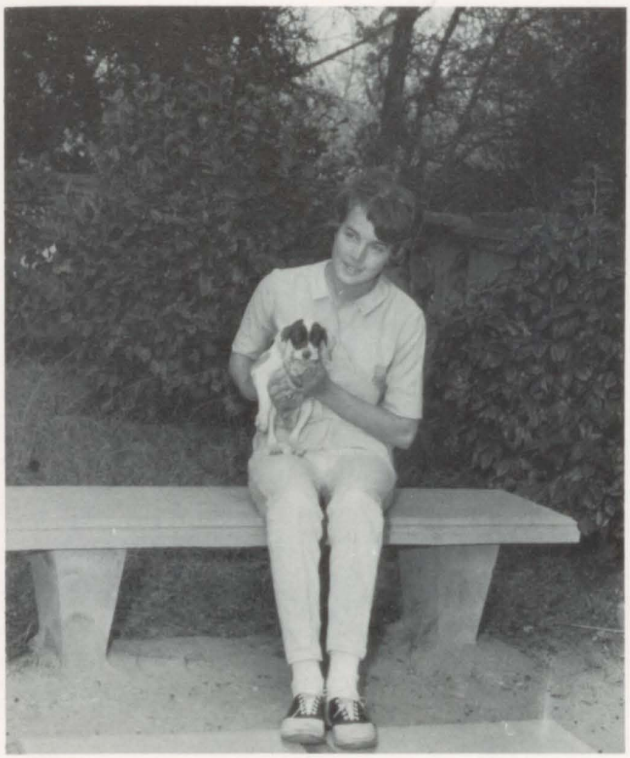
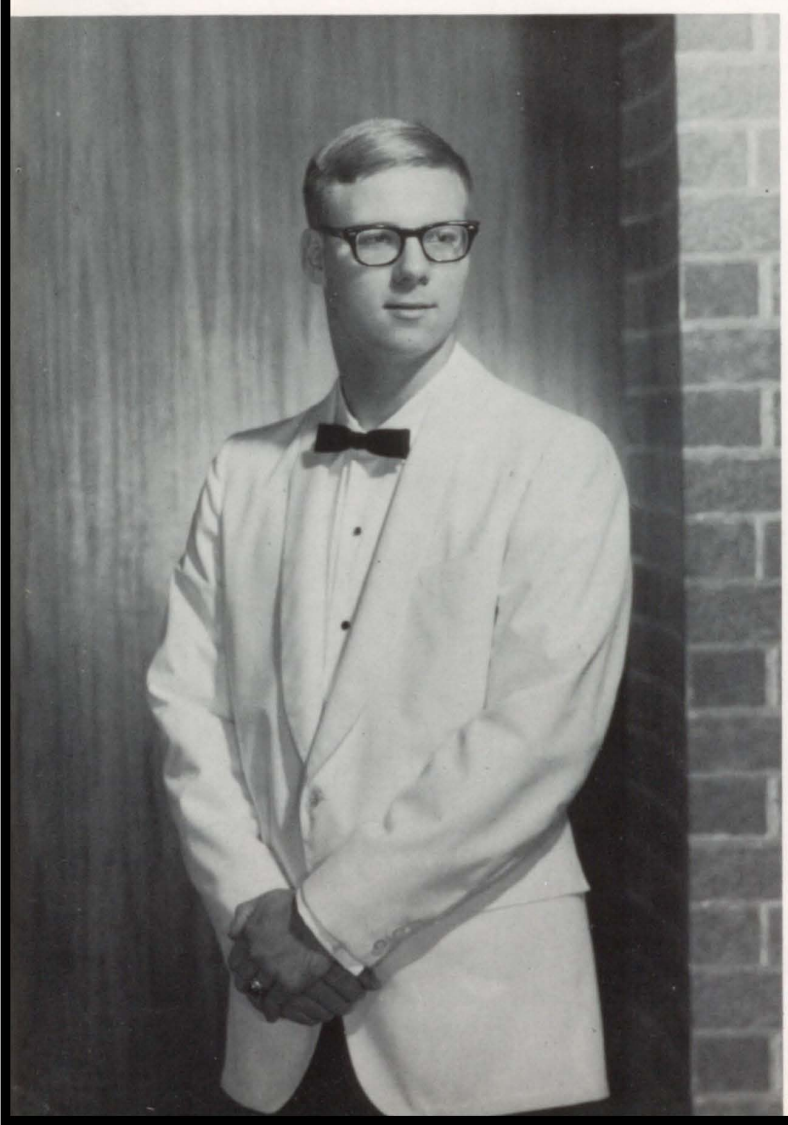
Dedicated to life's highest principles, Jimmy Corbitt lives the faith in which he believes. There was nobody in the Class of '66 who was not Jimmy's friend.

Jane Dukes—A deep concern for others gives her a selfless devotion to every obligation and enhances her strong convictions and evident capabilities—truly an inspiration.

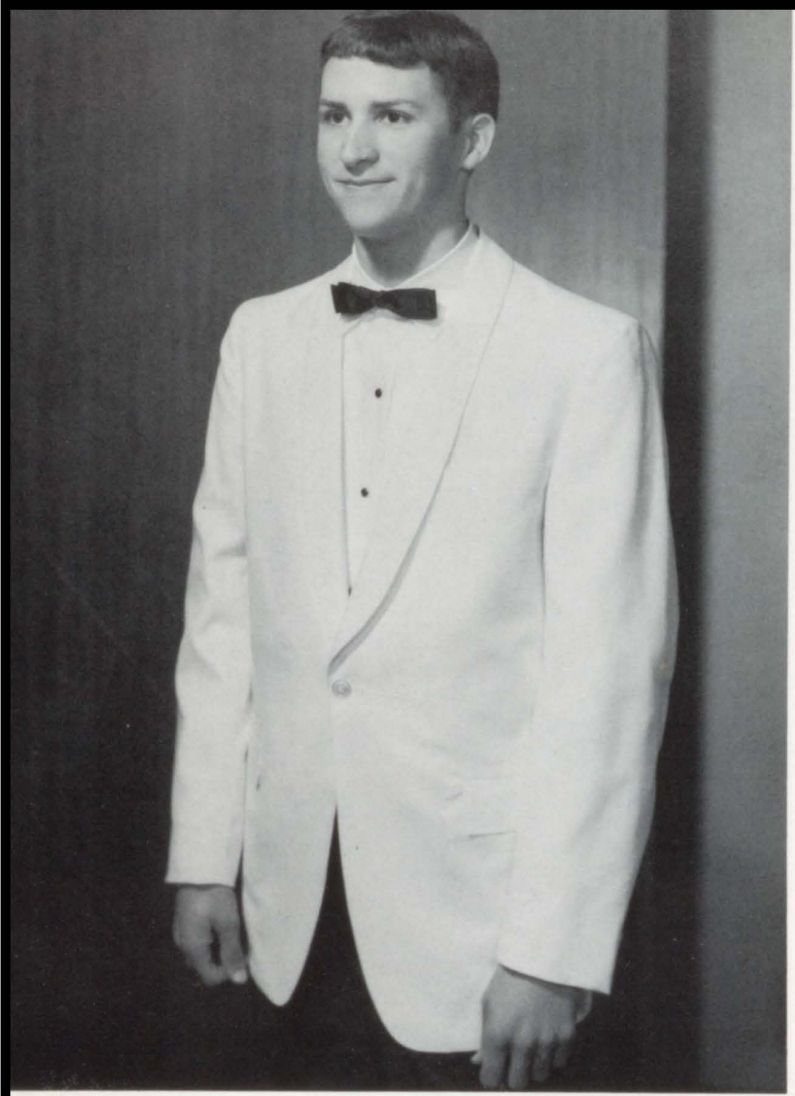
Superlatives



Donna DuPree—Pleasingly modest and unaffected, a girl who loves sports, and who gets things done with quiet sincerity and hard work.



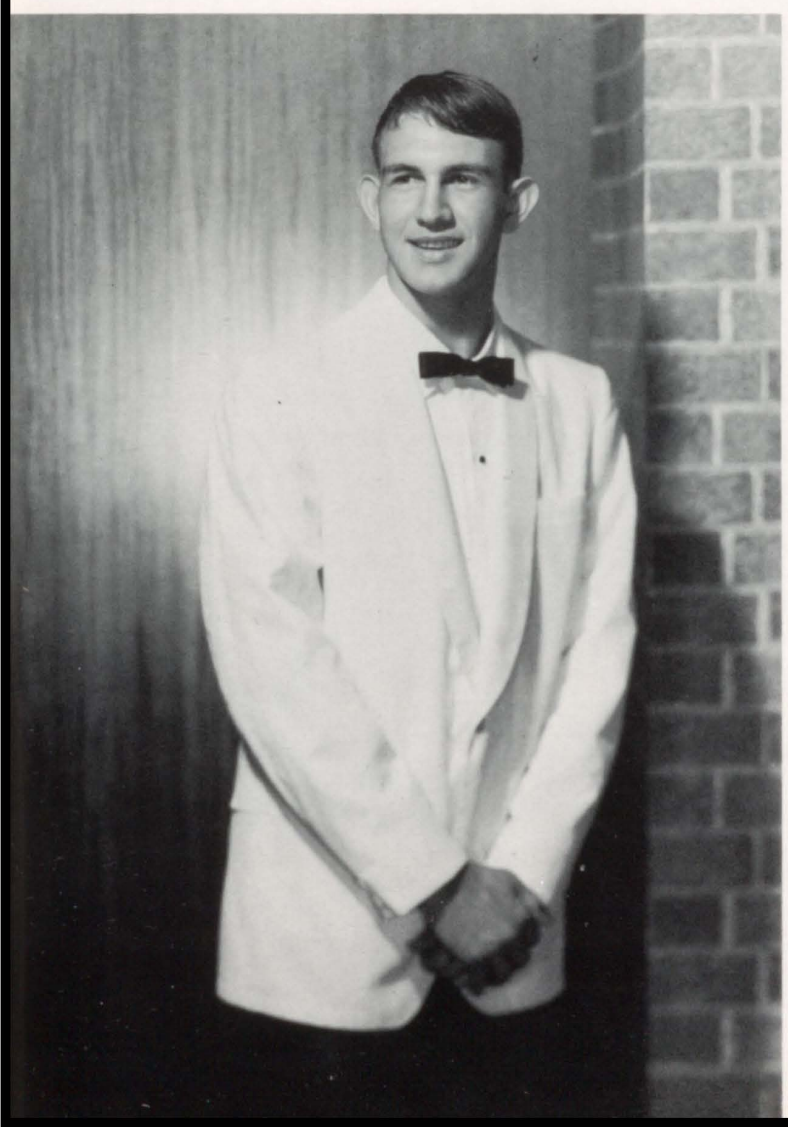
Distinctive marks of Bobby Gerhardt were a winning smile and captivating sincerity. His offices of president twice and vice-president once of the Class of '66 readily attested to his superlative qualifications.



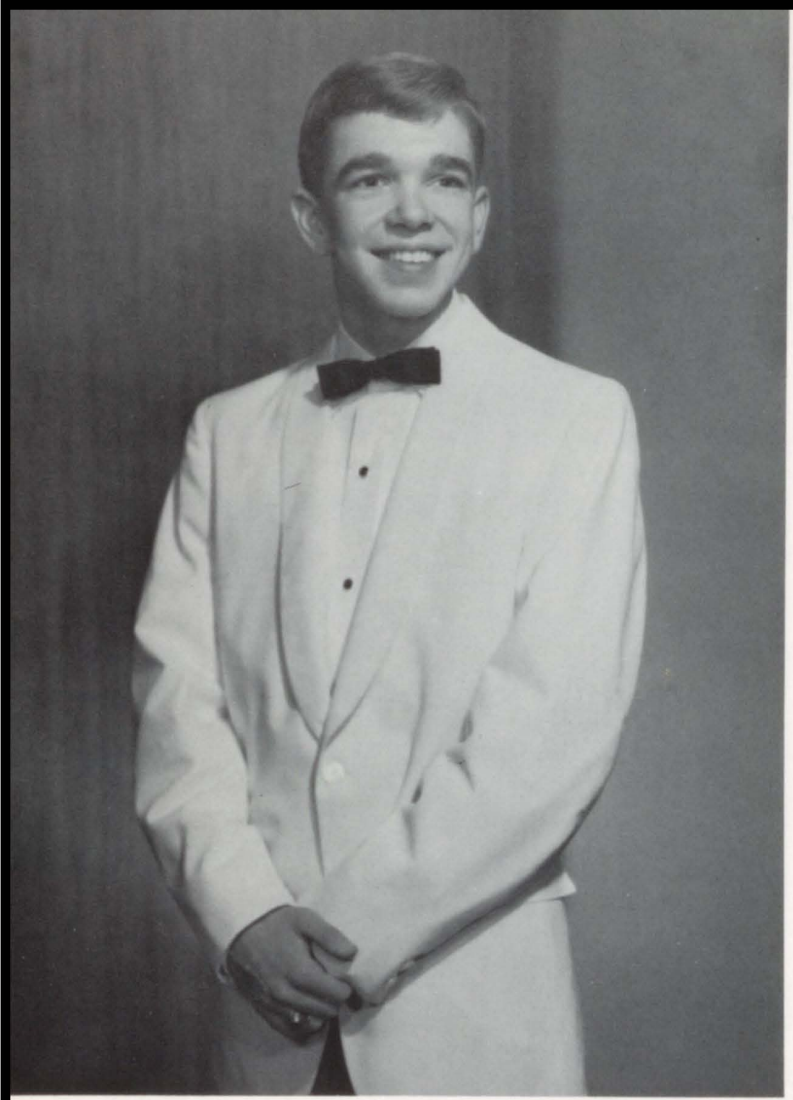
Few people are capable of subjugating self-interest in favor of concern for others. For this reason, above all, Van Hale was named superlative.

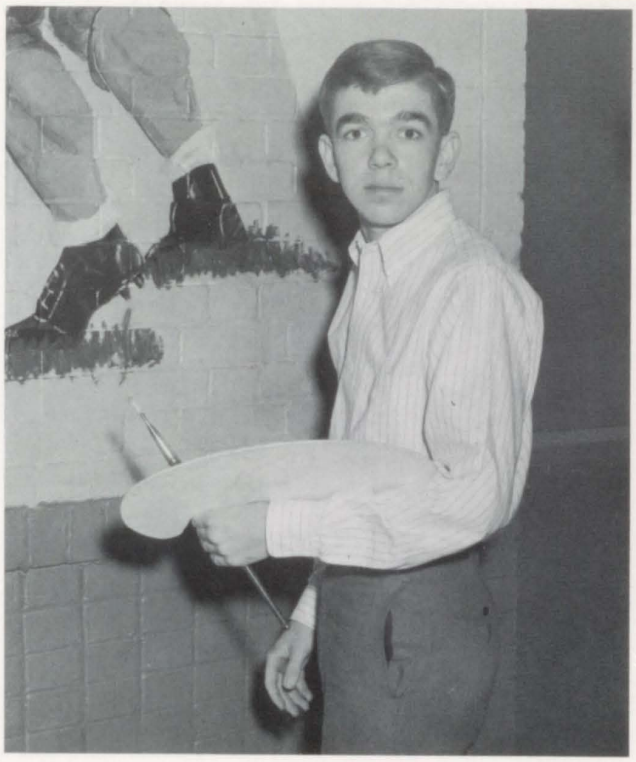
Ann Victoria Grice—A charming young lady of boundless energy with a smile for everyone—the embodiment of optimism and ambition.

Martha McKay—A petite bundle of giggles and blushes, she bubbles with refreshing impish humor and is always a willing worker.



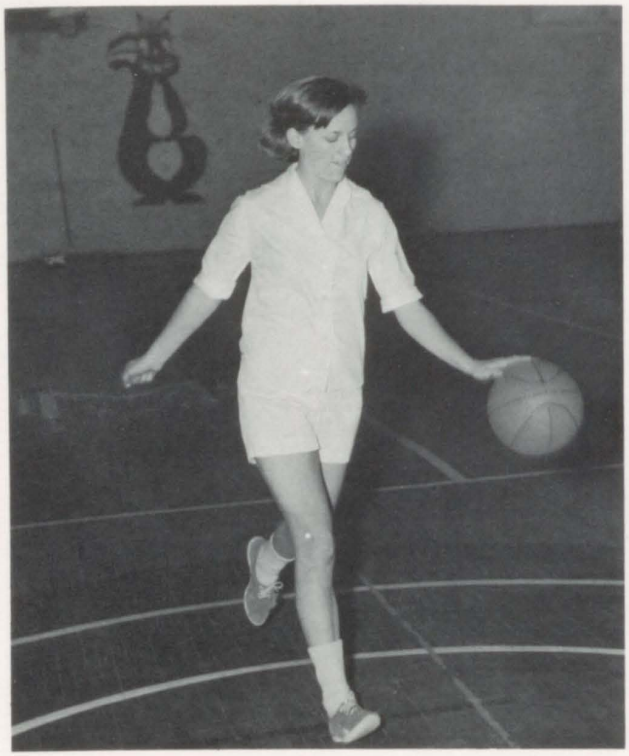
Mike Mayo epitomized the athletic achievements of the Class of '66. His adeptness in football and baseball, and a warm personality won for him the high regard of his classmates.



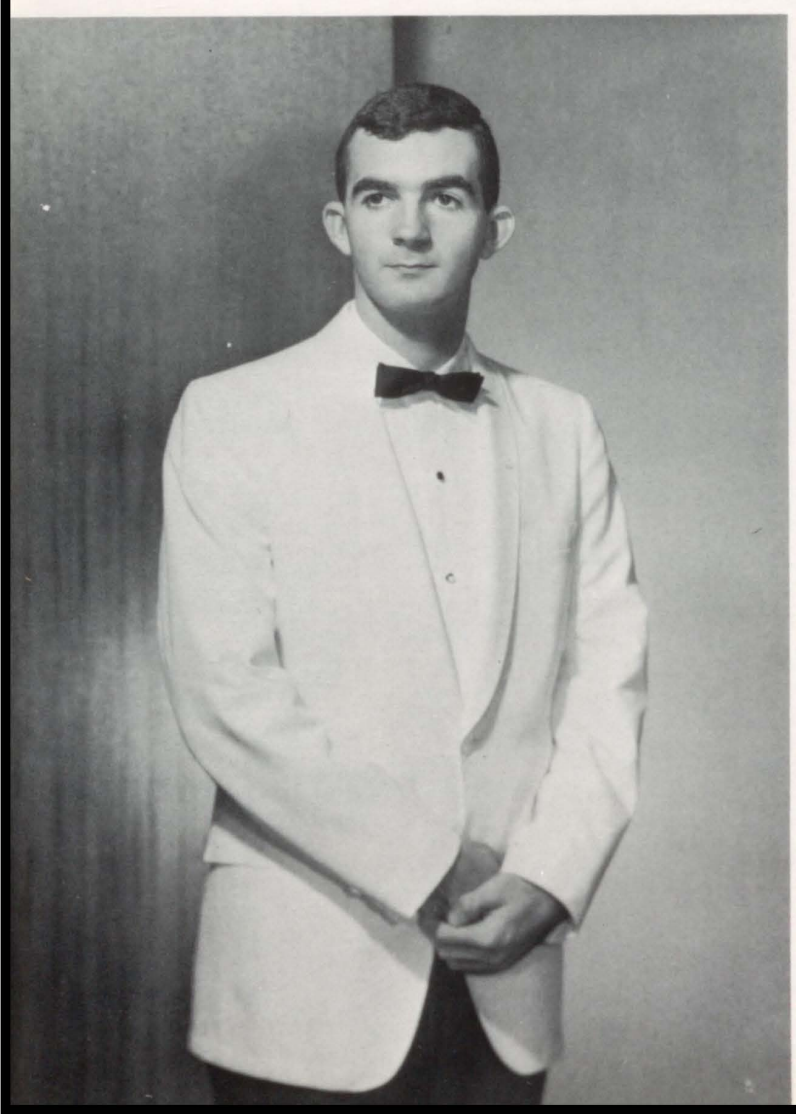


Tommy Powell will always be remembered as the man with the paintbrush and crayons. His delightful sense of humor and zest for life gained for him the affection of his classmates.

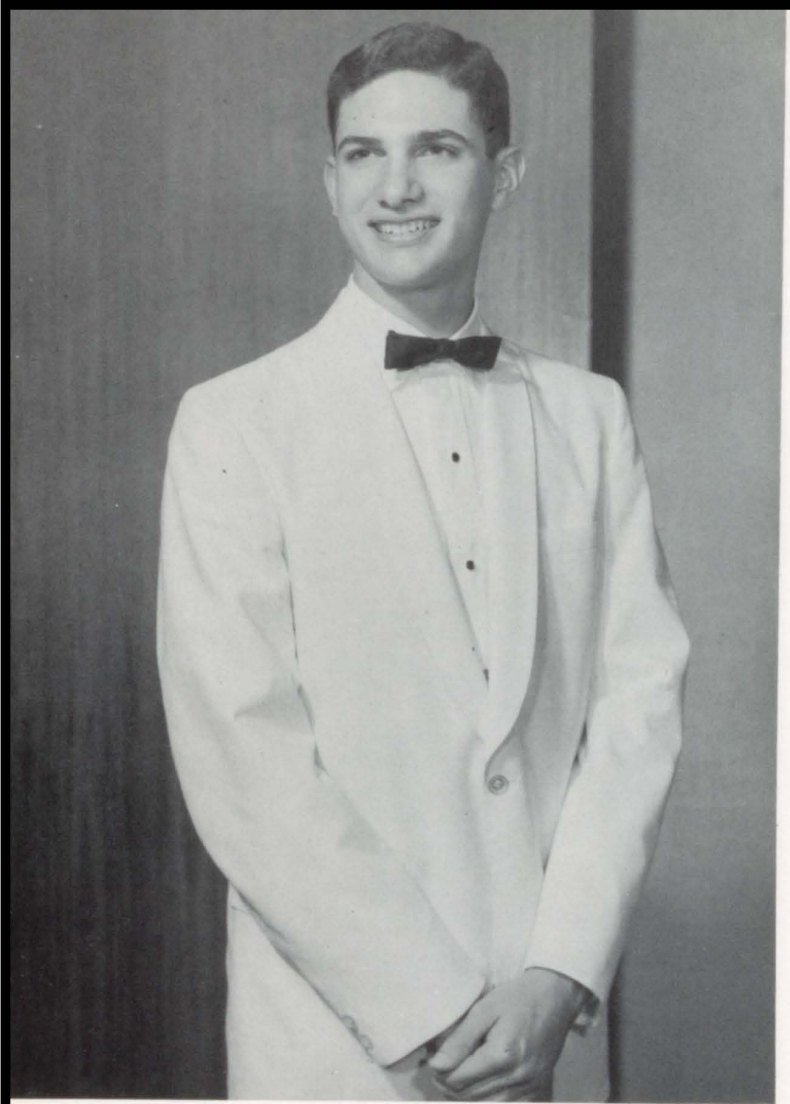
Bronnie Phillips—A pixie-like charm which enlivens a sincere and conscientious character and endears her to faculty and students alike—a real diplomat.

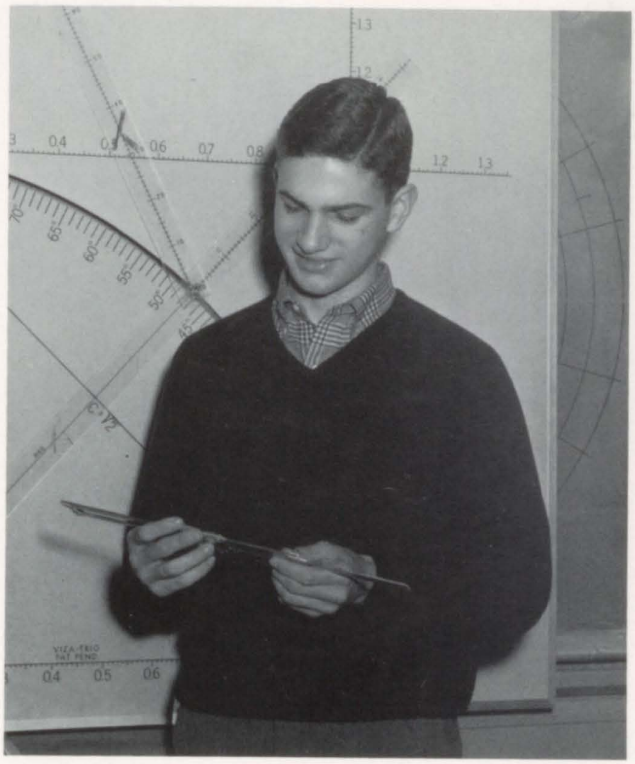


Andrea Richardson—An unpretentious natural who embraces responsibility with enthusiasm. Her genuine interest in people and unselfish dedication are delights to everyone.

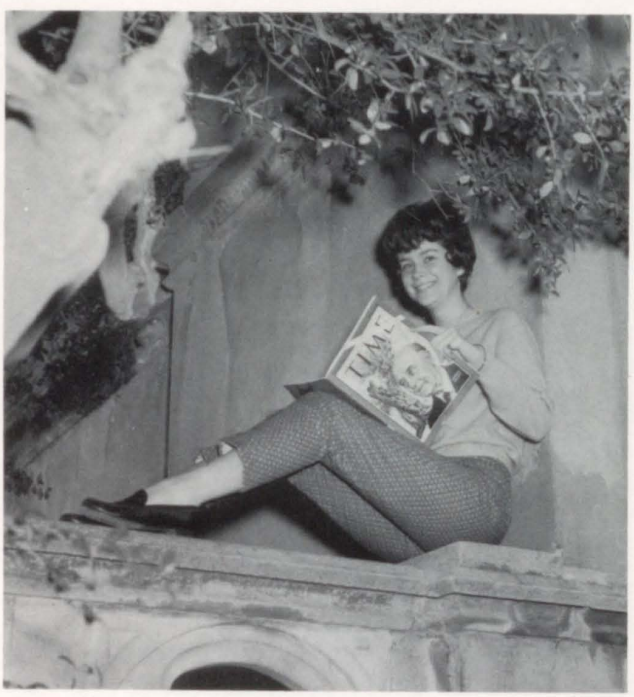


Tommy Rogers executed his duties as cadet colonel of the ROTC with a quiet strength and force, typical of his character. His unassuming attitude and amiable air won him the esteem of the Class of '66.



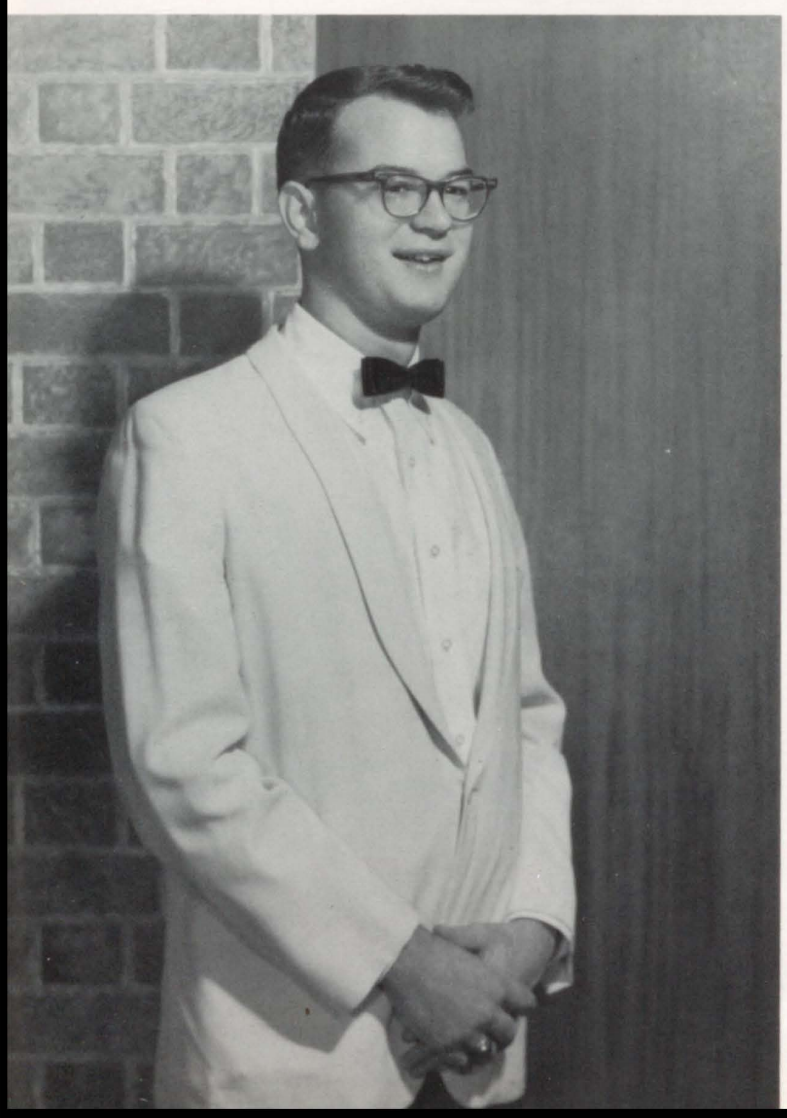


Unpretentious, yet firm of purpose, Earl Tyler typified the height of academic and intellectual achievement of the Class of '66. Earl's character commanded admiration, from both his associates and faculty.



Beth Truesdel—An alert mind expressed in her lively wit—a hardworking and dynamic leader.

Taffy Richardson—A classic beauty, reliable and sincere, independent and honest—a unique and lovable young lady.



The dynamic personality and warmth of Dee Willis merited the respect of all his peers. His forceful leadership in school affairs instilled an energetic spirit into the publications and activities of the Class of '66.

National Merit Semifinalists

The three Miller girls selected as National Merit Semifinalists have been accorded an honor for which only students of the highest caliber can qualify. These students constitute less than two-thirds of one per cent of the graduating secondary school senior population.

Jane Dukes Elected Best Citizen

The Best Citizen contest is sponsored by the Daughters of the American Revolution. In order to choose the Best Citizen, each senior supervision nominates three girls, keeping the following qualifications in mind: patriotism, dependability, leadership, personality, civic responsibility, consideration of others, and interest in family, school, community, and nation. The teachers then select the Best Citizen from among those girls with the highest number of votes.

Miss Betty Jean Whitmire

The Miss Poet Laureate contest was originated by the editors of this year's annual. We felt there should be one contest in which judgement was based on facial beauty alone. To accomplish this the girls were judged by four men who had never seen them before. Thirty finalists were chosen from the entire Miller Senior Class by three Mercer law students. The finalists' pictures were then sent to Jerry Van Dyke, and from the pictures alone, he selected the one he felt was the most beautiful. We hope this contest will become a permanent part of the annual in the years to come.

Hail to the Class That Everyone Picks Hail to the Class of '66

Presenting a successful Senior Play, winning the basketball championship and Fun Night, selling snowballs, eating outside on Fridays, and leaving school five minutes early—Senior rings, college acceptances, and graduation invitations. When the senior year ends, a whole new way of life opens up for Miller girls, college for some, jobs or marriage for others; no matter how one looks at it, it will be work!

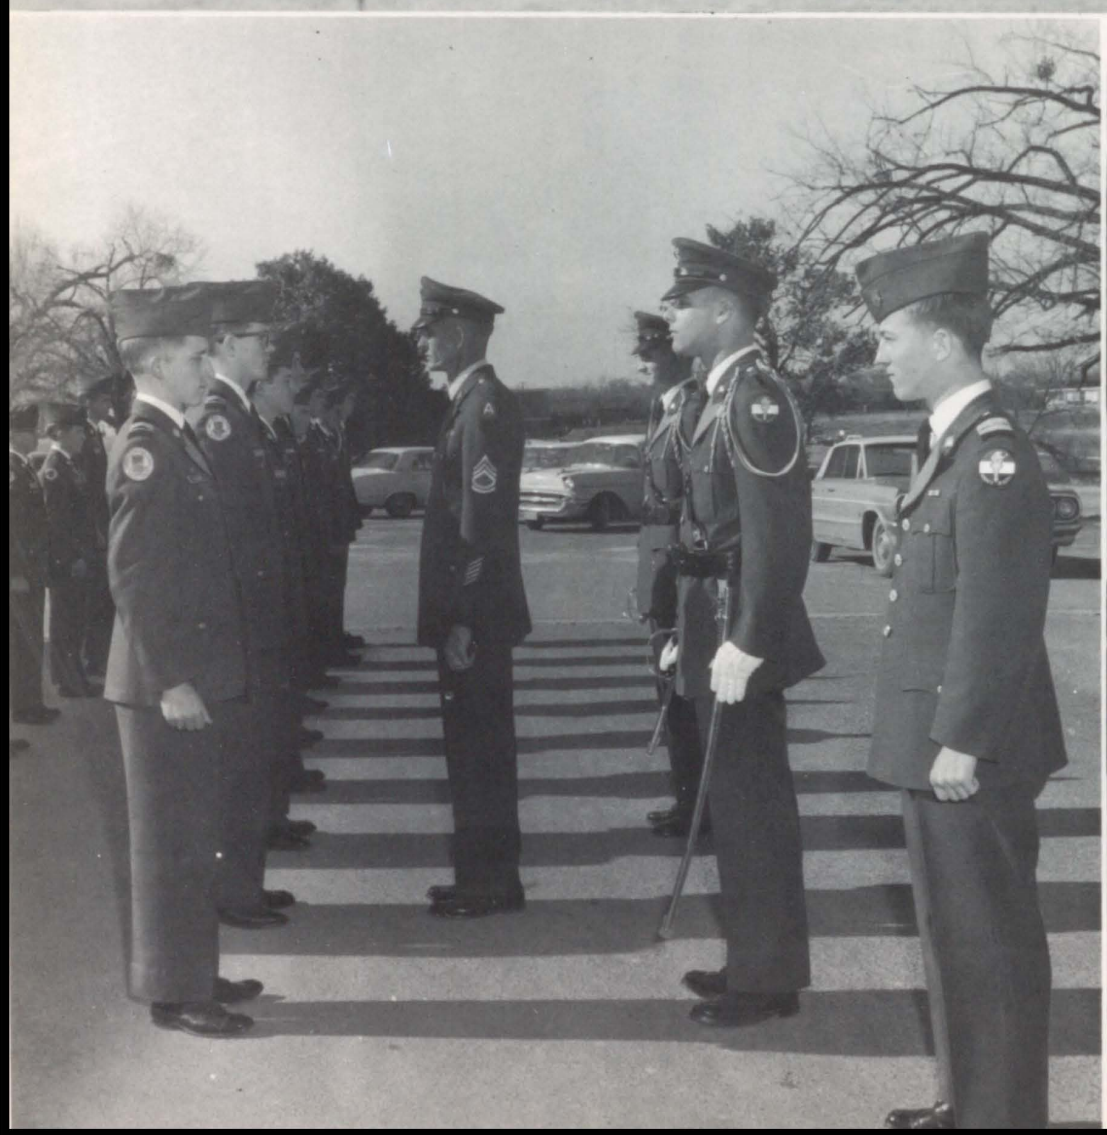
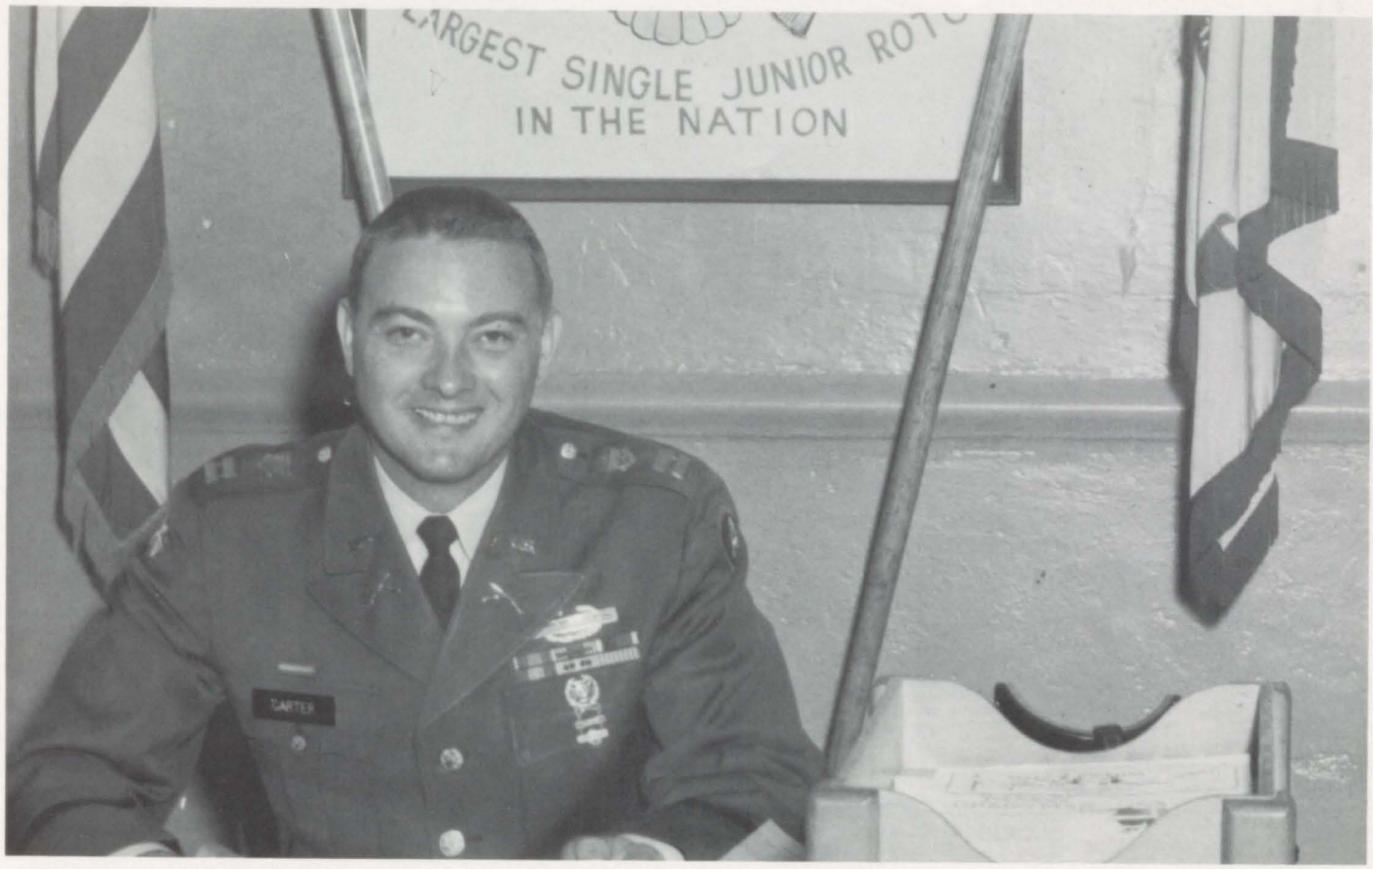
THE BIGGEST AND



THE BEST



Captain David L. Carter, Infantry
Professor of Military Science, Lanier Senior High School

Although a personal tribute is in order for Captain Carter, the most appropriate accolade would be a description of the lives that he has influenced. While other professional military men are defending their country in combat, Captain Carter has accomplished perhaps more for his country's defense in four years than any other soldier has with a lethal weapon in a whole career. He and his military staff have produced hundreds of Lanier graduates who have a sense of pride in themselves and their country.

Captain Carter has never demanded respect without deserving it; he has never ordered a subordinate to do a task which he himself could not do; he has exacted honesty from his cadets and he has given it to them in return; his duties have required that he be a firm disciplinarian, but he has never abused his authority. Under his direction, the Lanier ROTC has become a model, admired and imitated by other high school and college ROTC units.

His most significant attribute is that, in every sense, he is a man. The United States need not fear if all its fighting men rank in Captain Carter's category.
